FRANK T. TUCKER DROWNS IN RIVER AT OSHKOSH EARLY THIS MORNING

WAS CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL ON REPUBLICAN TICKET.

MAY HAVE ENDED HIS LIFE?

Bridge Tender Heard His Cry For Help at 4:30, Body Was Later Recovered—Worried Over Coming Primaries.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 11.—Frank T. Tucker of Madison, Wis., a candidate for the republican nomination for attorney general, was accidentally drowned early this morning.

The tender of the light street bridge heard a cry and a splash about 4:30 a. m., and on investigation found Tucker's sooty and lifeless body in the water. The dragging of the body was started at once and the body of the man was taken from the river at 10:15 a. m.

Following the discovery of evidence of a probable drowning or possible suicide the police dragged the Wolf river at a point where Matthew Hickey said he heard a loud splash at 4:30 a. m. today. Hickey found a hat and a grip on the bridge.

The authorities who took charge of the hat and grip found in the latter several pieces of campaign literature, evidently written out in the interests of Frank Tucker, candidate for attorney general on the republican ticket.

HON. H. A. COOPER SPOKE AT RINK

1st DIST. CONGRESSMAN IN A FORCEFUL CAMPAIGN ADDRESS.

DEFENDED HIS INSURGENCY

Lauded La Follette and Whacked Speaker Cannon and Others in True Spellbinder Style.

Before an audience which filled every available chair in the rink and which repeatedly interrupted his discourse with cheers, Congressman H. A. Cooper delivered one of the most forcible and eloquent campaign addresses of his career last evening. The insurgents and La Follette supporters who composed the larger portion of the crowd were enraptured and approved of the entire line of attack from the Cannon, Aldrich and Ballinger target-practice to the sharp-shooting at Wallace Ingalls, the speaker's political opponent. They also endorsed his eulogy of La Follette, Cummings, Borah, Briar, Dickey, Dwyer, and other leaders of factional warfare within the republican ranks and the occasional modest tribute to himself as tireless champion of the people's rights.

Following the introduction by Attorney W. H. Dougherty, Mr. Cooper offered high tribute to his district and the 200,000 people who dwell therein, and then professed an exhaustive and detailed review of his record by nullifying a vicious campaign lie to the effect that he owned a house and lot in Washington and by announcing that any challenge from the man who was attacking him would be considered an order to be obeyed. He said that he did not claim a monopoly on the nomination for congress but remarked in this connection that he had thus far heard no one connect Cooper's name with the scandals of the Pacific railway, or those following the Cuban war, or attending the Indian legislation and some of the similar affairs. No one could discover anywhere in the trail of guilt a footstep leading to his threshold. Industrial insurance, concerning which a gentleman had been talking needlessly to the people of this district for over a year past, was a good thing. The best thought of the world approved of it. But Congress which had recently appropriated $15,000 for a commission to investigate this comparatively new problem was powerless, under the constitution, to pass a law giving industrial insurance to any but government employees. The legislature at Madison, alone, could establish it for the working men of Janesville or any other city in Wisconsin. The gentleman had said that Cooper went to the Philippines at the expense of the U. S. treasury. The fact was that he went on the invitation of the Philippine government and the U. S. treasury had never paid a dollar. But the gentleman who went to Germany to study industrial insurance went at the expense of the state of Wisconsin.

Speaking from the text that something must be done to curb the power of money in the politics of the United States, the speaker invited his hearers to look at Illinois and took occasion to re-avow his belief in a blank which he presented at the national republican convention calling for the election of U. S. senators by a direct vote. The enemies of the general welfare relied upon the short-sightedness of men's memories. As an illustration the speaker carried those who listened to him back to the John B. Aldrich correspondence revelations and the congressman, Joseph Sibley then of Florida, who wrote once asking if the Standard Oil Co. would care to "invest" $1,000. In a senator who was hard-up, and on another occasion: "I have been thinking it would be a good thing for you to get control of the Associated Press." That same Sibley had been placed on the retired list but a few months ago he was again nominated—this time in Pennsylvania—and admitted that he held $40,000 for the nomination. And it was not until last Thursday that the papers announced that Sibley's health had failed and that he would not be a candidate for election. His campaign managers had been careless in handling his checks and drafts and receipts and the next day he was arrested and himself and four of his lieutenants held for trial. "But in this state this year, we have no checks, nor receipts, nor drafts," concluded the speaker.

The speaker did not mind being called an insurgent, "Rebel," "traitor" and "insurgent" were epithets applied to George Washington and he succeeded, in spite of them, in achieving a very respectable reputation in this country. "They call us democrats, too," exclaimed the speaker, in a speech reported in your great daily—"the Gazette"—(holding up a copy of the issue mentioned) "and I mean it—it is one of the most enterprising newspapers in the country in giving its readers the news, but I sometimes think it is prejudiced against the insurgents—it is said that of the ten republican members of congress from Wisconsin only two made any pretense of supporting the President."

Mr. Cooper then explained his stand on the railroad bill, claiming that it was prepared outside of congress and that the members were given to understand by a man quite remote from the President that it must be passed in its original form without crossing a "T" or dotting an "I," and that those who objected would be branded and driven from the party. It contained a provision providing for a new commerce court with exclusive jurisdiction over the cases instituted by the interstate commerce commission but also providing that when the appeals were taken the commission should take no part in the trial but should be superseded by assistant attorneys created for the purpose.

He did not oppose the postal savings bank bill but the incorporation with it of a rule designed to curtail debate and forestall amendment.

The tariff bill in its original draft had contained no provision for a 25 per cent duty on crude petroleum and its by-products and this was coupled with a stipulation to the effect that if it was not passed the Dingley contravailing duty of 90 per cent would be in effect. When Mr. Cooper attacked this as the most extraordinary proposition, he spoke of Senator Cannon and the Pannama canal as one of the brightest gems in Roosevelt's cabinet—a great project which would bring together the two wings of the American navy and lessen the number of battleships needed for defense and redundant to the financial prosperity and the glory of the United States and the man who had the Andrew Jackson interplay to seize the opportunity. He reviewed the recent scandal in Indian affairs, involving the offer of a $50,000 bribe to Senator Gore, and called attention to the provision of the bill adjudicating that 10,000 individual contracts with the Indians were to stand if approved by the President, who of course could not pretend to inspect them, and his Secretary of the Interior—Mr. Ballinger. This brought the speaker to a brief consideration of the alleged Alaskan land grab, and he concluded his address with a reassertion of his opening announcement that he was willing to stand by his record.

HEARD IN JUVENILE COURT

Judge Is No Match for Colored Mammy, Who Outwits Him at Every Turn.

The judge of the juvenile court, leaning forward in his chair, looked searchingly from the discreet and very rugged pickaninny before his desk to the ample and solicitous form of the culprit's mother, says the Youth's Companion. "Why do you send him to the railroad yards to pick up coal?" demanded his honor. "You know it is against the law to send your child where he will be in jeopardy of his life."

"Deed, judge, I doesn't send 'im; I nobber has sent 'im, 'deed—"

"Doesn't he bring home the coal?" interrupted the judge, impatiently.

"But, judge, I whips 'im, judge, ev'ry time he brings it, I whips de little napsillon till he can't set, 'deed, I does."

The careful disciplinarian turned her broad, sultry countenance reproachfully upon her undisturbed offspring, but kept a conciliatory eye for the judge.

"You burn the coal he brings, do you not?" persisted the judge.

"Burns it—burns it—eose I burns it."

"Why, judge, I has to git it out ob de way."

"Why don't you send him back with it?" His honor smiled instintively as he rasped out the question.

"Send 'im back, judge!" exclaimed the woman, throwing up her hands in a gesture of astonishment. "Send 'im back! Why, judge, ain't yo' jest done been told me I didn't oughter send my chile to no such dangerous and jeopardous place?"

The Texas Pandhandle Is Not the Land of Promise

It is the land of cold facts and figures and large profits for the farmer.

What do you think about a country where the average farmer is raising crops of 45 bushels of corn to the acre? Would you like to own land that this year produced twenty-five bushels of wheat, fifty to sixty bushels of oats, and five cuttings of alfalfa?

Would you like to own a farm in a land where there has never been an entire crop failure? Where there is an average rain fall of 24 inches a year? Where you can plow at any season of the year?

If you ARE NOT MAKING MONEY enough at present or for some reason are dissatisfied, a proposition of this kind surely would be worth while looking into. Would it not? This land is cut up into tracts to suit the purchaser, and the price is from $16 to $30 per acre on easy terms.

Why not join Keiser Bros. and Phillips personally conducted excursion to Canyon City, Texas, on Tuesday, Sept. 6th. The fare, including sleeper both ways is only $30, and we will refund railroad fare and pay you for your time if you do not find conditions absolutely as above stated. Could anything be more fair? You only take one chance and that chance is that you will better yourself. Drop me a card at the below address or phone me at my expense for free booklet.

THAT COFFEE MACHINE

"I have not yet told you about our coffee machine," wrote the young matron to her best girl friend. "We had long anticipated its purchase. Pennies had been saved for the purpose and even coffeeless breakfasts endured for the ultimate joy of its possession. The beverage tasted ambrosial when made in a friend's machine where we had visited; but our experience is a solemn warning that the ownership of one is not without trials."

"We proudly selected ours from a host of them in a department store, choosing one whose top was particularly indicative of an open and simple disposition, while at the same time its legs were sturdy. But, oh, the gullio beneath that plaid front!"

"That coffee machine came into our lives on a Friday evening, where, in the gloom of our cellar, its many wrappings were removed and its coppery form brought joyfully to the light. We loved it at first, and I slept lightly, dreaming fond dreams of the morning cup, it was to yield for our refreshment."

"I rose at 6:30 to cajole it into performing, but I found art to be long and time fleeting, and the inexorable eight o'clock train refused to wait either for my husband or my percolator. So a hasty, watery cup was administered to the former, mingled with the domestic joys that usually accompany the commuter's breakfast."

"That ordeal over, I settled down to the fondling of my new pet, dishes unwashed, beds unmade, the family neglected, the day's orders ignored. First came its bath, then certain mancurlings and polishings of corners. Then came its breakfast of alcohol, of which it seemed to demand a large quantity. A friend was expected for luncheon, and her envy was to be stirred by our recent acquisition."

"At 11 o'clock I was aroused from my absorbing task to the realization that woman does not live on coffee alone, and the scramble of preparation began and continued until one o'clock. A hurried hostess greeted the friend, but my persuasive powers had caused the coffee machine to lift up its voice and merrily sing as we sat down to the table. The yield of coffee was clear, amber, fragrant and strong, but I got not a taste of it, as there proved to be but one small cup within the percolator's depths."

"Still, there was hope of better things on Sunday morning, when there would be leisure and a calm mind for the interview. I looked forward to the treat I should give my family when the day of rest arrived. But, having formerly depended on my trusty gas stove, I forgot that percolators demand food, and Saturday evening, all too late, I realized that I had no alcohol. The rest of the evening was passed in weary telephoning to all the neighbors, but the district had certainly gone dry, for no persuasion would yield a drop."

"As I was going to bed, however, I had an inspiration. Coffee we must have from that coffee machine. I know James would never get up and go to the drug store before breakfast for alcohol alone, and I hadn't the energy to do it myself. But the happy thought came to go early to church, with alcohol as an ulterior motive in the background. This scheme worked well, except that I was cross when James woke me. But we went to church, and afterward James marched cheerfully to the drug store with his empty bottle, while I went home to get the deer but somewhat exacting percolator ready against his return."

Conversation:
"Conversation is the universal accomplishment which all must practice, and as those who fail signify to attain it are punished by the diallo or neglect of society, so those who succeed beyond the average receive a just reward, not only in the constant pleasure they reap from it, but in the esteem which they gain from their fellows. Many men and many women owe the whole of a great success in life to this and nothing else."

DIRECT REPUDIATION.
The Milwaukee papers are much disturbed over what is termed the direct repudiation of both Lewis and McGovern by the La Follette campaign managers. The Milwaukee Sentinel sums up the subject in the following editorial:

"And now comes bewildered Bob's campaign factotum, Munger Crownhart, and adds his mite to the general perplexity and obfuscation as to Bob's candidate for governor.

"On behalf of La Follette, deponent saith:

"I state, once for all, that the use of his name in connection with any candidate for governor, in a manner to imply that he is directly or indirectly supporting such candidate, is unauthorized and unfair."

"So there, now. If that means anything worth mentioning, it means that Senator La Follette repudiates both Candidate Lewis and Candidate McGovern."

"Each of these gentlemen has really posed as the sole possessor of superior political preference and been fighting like the devilish for the campaign over that bone of contention."

"And now Manager Crownhart to all intents and purposes notifies the public that Bob has no particular use for either of them!"

"If Manager Crownhart speaks by the card, his announcement 'in behalf of Senator La Follette' is the neatest approach that slightly rattled politician has yet made to speaking out on the issues of this campaign."

"Frenzied appeals to Bob against Crownhart are now in "order from Messrs. Lewis and McGovern. We await the sequel."

NICARAGUA AGAIN.

Every now and then come visitors to us out of the east, that tell us things that well might be needed, but would not be said if the speakers realized how sensitive to criticism we are as a nation. Not long ago, her highness the Maharani of Baroda told us some very sensible things; now comes Baron Oura, the Japanese minister of agriculture and commerce, who is on his way home from the Anglo-Japanese exhibition in London. He thinks that Americans hurry too much, and draws a rather clever distinction when he says, "Your great Roosevelt called it a strenuous life, but I should call it a speedy life." Speed, as such, is of no importance, whatever and is often nothing more than a form of personal amusement. It interferes with the contemplation without which no one can afford to be and above all, it stands in the way of appreciation. Expedition is good, so far as it means the advance from one goodly thing to another; mere speed is no more than the rapid comparison of two points in position and has in itself no virtue. When a man of sense hurries by a beautiful tree in order that he may say that he has arrived at an uninteresting house before somebody else, he has lost the tree, and some of his sense. He has done something more; by his action he has attempted to force upon the world his own standard of beauty, which consists in outstanding somebody else and which he favors quite as much as he that has different ideas.

Baron Oura says very modestly that his countrymen could never endure a like degree of hurry in business, yet the great achievements of the Japanese in commerce and politics go to prove that the baron does not give them quite credit enough. The endurance of the Japanese is very great and probably in many ways greater than that of the Americans, but that is not of much importance just now. The pressing and disquieting question for us to ask ourselves is, whether we ever attain the goal to which we hurried with such remarkable speed.

STRAIGHT CAMPAIGNING.
The voters on Tuesday will have an opportunity of deciding whether they prefer the clean-cut campaign that has been conducted in a gentlemanly manner by Stanley Dunwiddie, in his race for the district attorney nomination, or the methods that have been used in papers throughout the county by his opponent in trying to evade the real issue of the campaign and attempting to belittle Dunwiddie by ridiculous and insinuating statements. Mr. Dunwiddie is a young man of sterling character and is well equipped for the office he seeks. That he has the backing of the leading attorneys of the county, of the prominent members of the county board and business men of Janesville generally, speaks for his true value in the eyes of the men who know him. If he is nominated he will be in close touch with the members of the county board, a most important item when carefully considered. That he has never sought an office before, has never drawn pay from the county for previous work, is all in his favor. If nominated he will be credit to the county and the voters who support him. It is up to the voters to decide and the ballots on Tuesday next will tell the story of the kind of man the county wants to handle its legal business.

INGALLS VERSUS COOPER.
Last evening Congressman Cooper spoke in the West Side room, explaining his attitude on matters of national importance. This evening his opponent for the republican nomination will speak in the same hall and according to his advertisements will take the lid off Mr. Cooper's political life. It promises to be an interesting address and it is expected that many will attend the meeting to hear the other side of the question so ably expounded last evening by the congressman that represents this district at Washington. The contest between these two men has been most lively and interesting throughout and as both are good speakers it has been one of the old fashioned campaigns.

So Dr. Cook is going after the record that will show that he discovered the North Pole. Well, he might continue his journey and go to the Pole itself so as to make certain he really got there.

Roosevelt even hints that the supreme court of the United States might wake up and try and catch up with the procession a little.

Lord Curzon, he of the Indian regime, has begun a bitter war upon Greek at Oxford college. If he wins out Xenophon will doubtless lead a masterly retreat.

School begins next week and the pupils do not relish the idea a bit but some doting parents are mighty glad the vacation days are nearing an end.

A bar with the sign that conduct such shapely trees in charge in the west.

An Oklahoma Indian sold 495 acres of land recently for $372. Lo! is not poor but also very easy.

Roosevelt continues to take the front page position in all the dailies throughout the country.

It may seem strange but not all the beautiful women who travel abroad are smugglers.

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)

You say the world is a weary place, where man is softish and mean—add base, where words are hollow, and hearts are cold, WEARY and life is only a race for WORLD gold. Ah, how I pity your state of mind! Whatever you seek in this world you'll find! If you look for men who are base and mean, you'll find an army of them, I mean; if you look for men who are true and good, you'll find them thick in your neighborhood. If seeking virtue, just take a walk—you'll find a sample on every block. I say the world is a bally joint! I cry to the croaking ones, about! Each day I live I am more impressed by the goodness housed in the human breast. There are kindly hearts, there are helping hands, as thick as the blooming sunshores sound! There are open doors for the soul astray, and cheerful pilgrims to point the way. The world no doubt is a dismal place, if you are seeking the mean and base; but it's all O. K., and it beats the band, if you are hunting the good and grand!

That is what you do when you let a non-subscriber use your telephone.

He is enjoying the advantage of the whole telephone system without paying, but when you want the non-subscriber you have to go after him. You pay for the service but can't use it.

More than that, he keeps the lines busy so that others who are paying for the service can't get it when they want it.

Do you think it just?

Where Addison Was Married.

St. Edmund's, Lombard Street, London, the rectory of which is vacated by the death of omnipotent Canon Benham, had previously possessed literary associations. The register records the marriage of Joseph Addison to the dowager countess of Warwick on August 9, 1716. Dr. Johnson grimly remarks that this match resembled the marriage in which a Sultan gave his daughter a man to be her slave; and Addison used to escape from the uncomfortable abode of Holland house to a coffee house at Kensington.

THE THEATER

"The Goddess of Liberty." The rain storm scene at the opening of the third act of "The Goddess of Liberty" in which Mr. Joseph E. Howard is being starred by Mort E. Singer, has proved to be one of the immense hits of the production from a scenic standpoint and is promised as the greatest treat of its kind in the history of the modern stage.

Mr. Neel Wayburn, who staged the entire production of "The Goddess of Liberty," is famed no little these days for his dramatic scenes. But, in this play he has surpassed all former efforts. In at least one direction—the realistic stroke of lighting that flashes across the heavens and falls, within an instant, a giant tree that forms part of the interior of the play's hero and heroine.

Whole audiences have been held spell-bound for several seconds after the tree has crashed onto the stage-ground, debating in their minds whether they had witnessed a reality or only a surpassing piece of modern stagecraft.

One of the critics in Chicago, where popular demand kept the show running continually for one solid year at the Princess Theatre before Mr. Baker could start it on its tour that the rest of the country might be permitted to share in the excellent entertainment. "The Goddess of Liberty" affords, according to the storm scene itself, "well worth a trip to the theatre, not to mention the multitude of other good things offered."

This musical comedy possesses more catchy music, more pretty girls than any other production of this character now on tour.

THE HEAVENS IN SEPTEMBER.

By Prof. Eric Doolittle of the University of Pennsylvania.

The return of the ringed planet. A variable Sun fading away. The bright elusive world, Mercury, clearly visible.

The bright planet Jupiter, which has been so conspicuous for many months, has at last drawn so near the sun that it can no longer be observed, and the interesting planet Mars, which even in the beginning of September is hopelessly lost in the sun's rays, will pass west of that body toward the close of the month and become a morning star. So that, except for the little planet Mercury, which for a few days after the first latter are so far distant that the light by which we view them certainly requires more than one thousand years to come from them to us, and probably it has been several thousand years on its journey. On the contrary, the beautiful Altair, at C, Fig. 1, is but fifteen light years away and the brilliant blue Vega, at D, thirty-three distances which, since light travels 186,300 miles in each second, are enormous, indeed, but which are position for observation. Across the yellowish green ball there are now distinct shadows or bands, which are darkest toward the pole, and surrounding the whole is the remarkable ring system. The rings are more widened out than at any other time during this year, their width appearing nearly one-third as great as their extreme length.

We thus have now an unusually satisfactory view of them. If the mense number of little meteoric particles, each pursuing its own path around the planet and forming, in fact, a little moon to Saturn, all being aggregated into a thin sheet 173,000 miles across, but less than 100 miles thick. The divisions in the ring are regions from which the particles are swept out by the disturbing pull of the larger moons.

A comparatively small telescope will show the largest moon of Saturn, named Titan, a world 3500 miles in diameter and which is nearly 800,000 miles away from the planet. Far outside of this is the giant Iapetus, more than 2,000,000 miles away and 2000 miles in diameter, while inside of Titan is the third brightest moon, Rhea, 1500 miles in diameter. The others are too faint to be well observed except with a large lens. Titan revolves about Saturn in 15 days 22 hours. It will be found at its farthest distance east on September 5 and September 29, and at its greatest distance west eight days later. Iapetus requires 70 days to make its journey about its orbit. It will be seen farthest east of the planet on September 6, and will pass Saturn in its westward motion on September 25.

Figure 4—Path of the new (10th) moon of Saturn as viewed from above, showing how it crosses the paths of Titan and Hyperion. This moon is too faint to be seen in any existing telescope.

is a remarkable fact that when it is east of Saturn this moon is much fainter than when west, which is believed to indicate that it always turns the same face toward the planet and that one half of the moon is much darker than the other. The same is true of the new ninth satellite Phoebe.

THE PLANETS.

Mars and Jupiter are much too near the sun in the west to be satisfactorily observed. The former becomes a morning star on September 27 and the latter on October 18.

Mercury, which was at its greatest distance east of the sun on August 30, will be clearly visible just after sun-of September may be detected shining out in the sunset glow, not a single planet remaining in the western heavens. But in the east the most interesting planet of all makes the month notable by its entrance into the evening sky. This is the beautiful Saturn, which, with its wonderful system of small confounds with the inconceivable extent of the cloud of more distant stars.

East of Cygnus is the Great Square of Pegasus, the diagonal, E. P., of which points nearly to the variable star Mira. The observer probably noticed how brilliant this became during the first week of last month, when it grew brighter than the little triangle of stars to the left of it. If he possesses a small telescope he should continue to watch its rapid fading away. It will probably become wholly invisible to him before the middle of September. This distant sun, which became suddenly thus bright at an interval of about 350 days, grew more brilliant this year than in several years previous, although it did not approach the brilliance of 1750, when for a few days it was one of the brightest stars of the heavens. The cause of these fluctuations, and in fact the cause of the remarkable periodic outpouring of light and heat, is not known.

Above the Great Square is the constellation Andromeda, of which the most remarkable object is the great Nebula, at H, Fig. 1. This is easily visible to the naked eye on a clear night. At all of the points marked L in this region beautiful clusters of stars will be found, and at the points marked K there are interesting double stars.

THE PLANET SATURN.

At the beginning of the month this beautiful planet will be seen just rising above the ground in the east, and toward midnight it will stand out high up in the heavens, in excellent light. It is a large, pale, yellowish-green, and numerous moons, forms always an absorbing object for study with a telescope.

Although the Scorpion, which is the most striking of the summer constellations, is just sinking from view, and the first of the bright winter groups has not yet made its appearance, the September sky is still full of objects of interest, just out of all the wonderfully complete branch of the Milky Way, which now forms an arch passing exactly through the highest point of the heavens. Extending along this arc are a series of most beautiful groups, from the Archer in the south to Perseus in the north, the Northern Cross now abutting out directly to the zenith. These bright stars are very much nearer than the majority of the stars which compose the Milky Way. The per month, to pose as Mrs. Rollette, the wife of the secretary to Lewellyn, president of the Inter State Railroad. This she does to order that she may fit with Lewellyn, thereby gaining from him the secretary's promotion which, of course, is the cause of the existence of the peculiar contract.

It should be explained that Lewellyn enjoys immensely an innocent flirtation with a pretty girl, the enjoyment, apparently, being satisfied if he succeeds in accompanying his attractive companion to a fashionable cafe and afterwards to the theatre. With this knowledge the "Blue Mouse" readily undertakes the commission and succeeds. The president swallows the bait. In order to further the affair, he sends his secretary out of town, resulting, of course, that the trip is arranged merely to get him away from New York. Rollette does not leave the city and inadvertently meets the president in the apartment of "The Blue Mouse." Lewellyn has great difficulty in explaining the object of his call. This "Blue Mouse" does, however, by producing an order calling for Rollette's promotion and thus the day is saved as well as the honor of the alleged Mrs. Rollette. There are over 20 swindling parts and a cast of 30 people. The first of the three acts shows the partitioned office of the Inter State Railroad, the second the "inner apartments" of "The Blue Mouse," and the third the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rollette. One of the New York critics called the play "The Bl Eiken play of the season."

Wm. Norris in "My Cinderella Girl." Mabel Mordant, who in private life is Mrs. William Norris, and plays the title role and opposite part to Mr. Norris in "My Cinderella Girl" succeeded Marguerite Clark with De Wolf Hopper in "The Pied Piper."

John Murble, who plays Byron Harrington was for years one of the principal comedians in the Hoyt forces. He created the undertaker in "A Milk White Flag" and played the part for seven consecutive seasons.

Myra Brooks who plays Mrs. Pinney originated the character parts in several of Richard Mansfield's productions. Frank Wunderlee who plays Rubie Addle has played prominent parts in nearly all of the successful college plays which have produced including the original New York production of "The College Widow," "Brown of Harvard," and "Going Some."

Ralph Theodore, who plays Slattery, the pitcher in the Slewish Baseball Nine, was for several seasons a member of James A. Herne's Company in "Shote Acres" and later appeared with Ada Rehan, Robert Edson, and Mrs. Fluke.

"My Cinderella Girl" will be seen at Myers Theatre Saturday, Sept. 3, matinee and evening.

The Value of GOOD BEER

In commenting on a report made public by a Special government Commission, "The Hospital," London, in an editorial says:

"When a man drinks good beer he eats and drinks at the same time just as when he eats a bowl of soup. We hope the number of beer drinkers will increase considerably, as the result of the research of our Commission and we hold the view that it would be infinitely better for the well being of the people as a whole, if they would select beer as their habitual drink. If the worth of food is measured by its calorimetric value, then a glass of good beer is approximately as nourishing as a glass of milk, or a quart of good beer is equivalent to a quarter of a pound of beef and it is often far more efficacious in the treatment of insomnia than drugs, due to the hypnotic principle contained in the hops."

THE PERFECTION OF GOLDEN CROWN BEER is the logical result of years devoted to the attainment of perfection in brewing.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is a nutritious beer because it contains all the food portion of the grain—a result of our process.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is an invigorating beer because it contains the tonic properties of the choicest hops.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is a pure beer because it is made under cleanly and sanitary conditions.

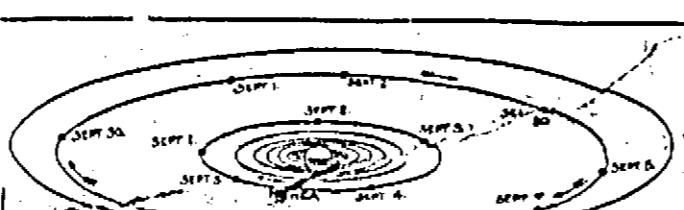

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is the ideal home beverage because it contains a very small percentage of alcohol. It is truly a temperate drink, invigorating and healthful.

PRESIDENT DIAZ LEADS BIG EVENT

CENTENNIAL OF THE REPUBLIC IS OPENED—FESTES TO LAST MONTH.

MANY NATIONS TAKING PART

Unveiling of Monuments, Dedication of Buildings and Other Events—United States Represented by Former Gov. Guild of Massachusetts.

Mexico City, Sept. 1.—One hundred years ago today Father Miguel Hidalgo, Mexico's first and greatest champion of liberty, organized the revolt against the mother country which ultimately resulted in Mexico's freedom and the celebration of that event was begun throughout the republic today and will continue throughout the entire month of September. The promoters of the centennial celebration have arranged to pay honor in a fitting manner to the brave men who gave up their lives in the fight for Mexican independence and each day some event commemorative of their patriotic deeds has been planned.

The United States is represented by a special ambassador, former Gov. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts, and a commissioner composed of Harrison Gray Otis of Los Angeles, Alexander Rock of Pittsburgh and Justice Gerard of the supreme court of New York.

Contrary to the policy of most expositions, no money has been invested in temporary buildings, but the funds have been used in making permanent improvements throughout the republic.

The celebration was formally opened today by President Diaz, with the dedication of a new general insane asylum. Tomorrow a hygiene exposition will be opened under the auspices of the superior board of health, and will remain open during the entire month.

Big Doings on September 18.

One of the biggest days in the celebration will be September 18. It was on this day in the year 1810 that Alvarado, a Mexican patriot, arrived at the home of Father Hidalgo in Dolores, and informed the priest and his friend, Allende, that the conspiracy against the Spanish government had been discovered.

A fighting priest immediately exclaimed: "Gentlemen, we lost; there is no recourse but to seek the Spaniards." This was beginning of the revolution, which had been several months and

In the execution of the brave on July 31, 1811.

His patriot's memory will be celebrated on the 18th by the erection of a monument to independence on the Paseo de la Reforma, President Diaz, at which time the celebration of independence will be read.

This will be followed by a great parade of 10,000 troops through principal streets of the city to pulque, where they will be received by President Diaz. In the evening there will be a number of patriotic entertainments held in the various theaters and parks.

Other important events in the celebration that deserve special mention are the opening of the Congress of Av. Leñista on September 8; the inauguration of the waterworks in the capital city on September 13; the laying of the cornerstone of the new legislative palace by President Diaz and the minister of public works on the 23d; the dedication of the reconstructed tunnel of Toluquilla, and the new works in connection with the drainage of the Valley of Mexico, under the auspices of the ministry of public works on the 26th; and the grand velada in the Aragon theater for the distribution of premiums to the winners in the historic literary and musical contests, conducted by the department of public instruction, and the distribution of prizes to winners in the contests conducted by the National Centennial commission, on the last day of the celebration.

CHARLES A. WHITE CAUSES A STIR

TELLS OF NEW $30,000 BRIDE FUND IN SENATORIAL DRIBERY CASE.

PEORIA MAN IS INVOLVED

Grand Jury Probing Perjury Charges in Connection With Browne Trial Indict Former Aid of State's Attorney—More Indictments Expected.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—A sensation was created in the Leo O'Neill Browne trial when the name of Edward Hull of Peoria was mentioned in connection with an alleged request, telegraphed from Springfield for $60,000 two days before the election of Senator Lorimer.

Charles A. White, recalled by the state in rebuttal, made the statement concerning Hull and the $60,000 fund.

White Tells of New Fund.

White testified that the information was given him by William Rossell, an important witness for the defense. He told of meeting Rossell and of a conversation they had in which White asked Rossell where the money came from that is alleged to have been used to bribe legislators to vote for Lorimer.

"Rossell told me," testified White, "that while in Springfield he had heard of a telegram being sent to Edward Hull of Peoria two days before the election of Senator Lorimer requesting Hull to start at once for Springfield with $60,000."

Attorneys for the defense started from their chairs at these words and a commotion in court followed.

Detective Is Indicted.

Patrick J. Keeley, suspended detective, former aid who turned against State's Attorney Wayman, was indicted on a charge of perjury by the special grand jury called by the prosecutor to investigate perjury charges in the Browne case.

Rumors were ripe that before the case of Browne could go to the jury half a dozen more indictments, involving persons closely connected with the trial, would be voted.

Detective Keeley was present in Judge Kersten's court. The report that he had been indicted did not surprise him.

"I expected it," he remarked. "In fact, I have my bondsman here ready to sign my bond."

Browne Closes His Defense.

The indictment of Keeley came just as the Browne defense had closed its case. Only four witnesses were heard in the Keeley case. They were in the grand jury room only a short time.

"Notice of the indictment will not be officially given out until Thursday, when it will be returned into court.

Wayman Opens Rebuttal.

After Browne closed his defense State's Attorney Wayman opened his case. Residents of East St. Louis were placed on the stand before Judge Kersten to impeach the testimony given by George Gross, a motorman, who was one of the most important witnesses for the defense. The state's witnesses aware they would not believe Gross under oath.

Fist Fight Is Near.

A fist fight between State's Attorney Wayman and Attorney Erbstein was narrowly averted in the trial.

The state's attorney was called a trickster by the attorney for the defense. He retorted hotly.

In a moment Attorneys O'Donnell and Forrest were on their feet to support their colleague, while the state's attorney's force joined in the hubbub, the noise of which drowned Judge Kersten's raps for silence. Finally the judge made himself heard and threatened to send all the attorneys in the case to jail in contempt, which quelled the disorder.

The case will go to the jury Saturday or Monday.

ASKS PUNISHMENT FOR COURT.

Wife Remains Faithful to Slayer of Her Own Father.

Canton, O., Sept. 1.—"May God punish you for this," cried Mrs. Cleatus Willman, in Judge Ambler's court, pointing her finger at Prosecuting Attorney Krechelmann. Judge Ambler had overruled a motion for a new trial and sentenced Willman to die in the electric chair for slaying Mrs. Willman's father, Warren Koenig, and Mrs. Koenig.

Mrs. Willman has been faithful to her husband, despite the fact that he stood accused of killing her father and that he was caught writing love notes to a fellow prisoner, Katie Munz.

Kill Giant Rattlesnake.

Ashley, Ill., Sept. 1.—J. G. West, William and Roe Smith killed an immense rattlesnake near here. The reptile was five feet long, 6½ inches in circumference and had 12 rattles.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Treat for Paupers.

Handed Down From the Past. The fear of the dark has lasted long after the reason for that fear has gone. Just as the dog's habit of turning round and round before he lies down to sleep has lasted since the time when his ancestors, the wild wolf-dogs, used to turn round and round in the deep drifted leaves of the forest to make warm, sheltered beds to sleep in. The habit has lasted long after the need for it is over, and on the smooth hearth the dog still turns round and round.

Skeptical Youth.

A recommendation that "eight old hens be killed and given to the sick and those inmates that do not go out on treat days" has been passed by the Chichester (Sussex) guardians. London Mail.

Might Do It.

"Do you know anything that will kill potato bugs?" asked the young man.

In spite of printed directions on cans, it has never been perfectly safe with the yellow fingers. "Yes," said he, "I put a sealed tin in hot water to heat. It is best to empty the contents crustily, 'got 'em to smoke cigarettes,' out into a saucepan, otherwise an explosion is possible."

An Ounce of Precaution.

Virtue.

Virtue by itself is not strong enough, or anything like it. It must have strength added to it and the determination to use that strength.

Theodore Roosevelt.

Savannah, Ga.—A well-founded movement has been started looking to the erection in this city of a monument to the memory of Eli Whitney, the inventor of the cotton gin. A nucleus for the fund has already been subscribed, the list of subscribers being headed by James Brandon of New York, the inventor of a recent improvement over the Whitney patents. The canvas for funds will embrace all the cotton factors in this country and in Europe. There is now no monument to Whitney in existence.

The monument will be erected upon the exact spot upon the old Greene plantation, near Monticello, a few miles above Savannah, upon which stood the workshop of the great inventor. The monument will face the public road, layed.

Auto Make Hopeful Examination.

New York, Sept. 1.—Mayor Gaynor was examined at his summer home at St. James, L. I., by six physicians. The medical men were met by the mayor at the station in an automobile. At the Gaynor home an exhaustive examination was made of the wound and Chamberlain Hyde gave out the official statement to the effect that the mayor's throat was found in excellent condition, the bullet being imbedded where it does not touch a vital spot. There is no need for an immediate operation and the mayor will fully regain his voice, it was said.

DECATUR BARS NEW TESTAMENT.
Book No Longer to Have Place in School Library.
Decatur, Ill., Sept. 1.—Decatur's school board decided to include the New Testament in the school libraries no longer. The state supreme court had handed down a decision in which it was held unlawful to give religious instruction in the public schools. Decatur decided to appeal to F. G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction. His advice came back swiftly that to have a New Testament in the public schools is against the law as some one is likely to read it.

Here's to happiness, the fountain of life, the builder of tissue; it never fails to dispel the blues; for it's the antidote to vapors of melancholia; it's the sun's rays piercing the cloud of darkness, the message of love of life, health and contentment; it's the absence nothing can thrive; it's the soulmate, the symbol, of a clear conscience.

Where the Honeymoon Is Long.
Marriage among Moslems in India is followed by other ceremonies. The bride with the bridegroom is taken back to her father's house after four days, then again she comes back to her husband's house after ten days stay, and then after a stay of 20 days returns to her father's house for at least six months. Thus instead of having a short period of honeymoon they make it last almost a year.

WHAT IS ITCH DIRT?

It is the old Anglo-Saxon name for dandruff, and it's a good one. If you have dandruff you have itch dirt, and the little interlocutors that are part and parcel of dandruff, are working persistently night and day, and sooner or later will reach the very life of your hair and destroy its vitality.

Then you'll be bald—bad to stay—for not even the wonderful rejuvenating power of Parisian Sage can grow hair after the hair bath or root is dead. Parisian Sage cures dandruff. The People's Drug Co. sell it, recommend it, and guarantee it, only to costs a large bottle and your money back if it fails to cure dandruff, falling hair and itching of the scalp. If you do not live near The People's Drug Co., who sell Parisian Sage, the American makers, the Glouco Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., will send you a bottle for 50 cents, all charges prepaid. There is no hair restorer so good—accept no substitute. The girl with Auburn hair is on every bottle.

WOMAN'S PAGEThe Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

A FEW LEAVES FROM THE DIARY OF A STOMACH.
10 A. M. Oh, dear, another hot day. Wonder if I'll be abused as I was yesterday. If I am, I'm going to strike. Just disposed of a half-chewed breakfast. We ran for the train, which meant that I was so jangled about breakfast. So tired that it took me twice as long to do my work. Hope she gives me an hour or two of complete rest before anything more comes my way. 10:30 A. M. Two glasses of ice water have just arrived. It will take all the energy I can pump up in the next hour to warm me up to normal again.

10:50 A. M. Half-chewed breakfast don't satisfy them and she has bought some peanuts and started eating them.

12 M. Peanuts have dribbled along steadily ever since last entry. Think she has finished them, though.

12:30. Decided she won't be very hungry, and instead of good solid dinner sent me down a cold egg nog, heavy with chocolate. Could have imagined it all right if it hadn't been so cold, but that makes it terribly hard to deal with.

1:10 P. M. More ice water!

1:40 P. M. Was mistaken about the peanuts. She found another handful in the bottom of the bag, and now I have them to tend to.

2:05 P. M. More ice water!!

3:10 P. M. She has been lifting some heavy books, and, as usual, used my muscles instead of her arm muscles, as she should have done. Tired me more than digesting a six-course dinner.

3:20 P. M. Some one has brought us a box of caramels and she has started on that.

4:30. Have received something like half a pound of caramels since last entry. She just said, "Oh, dear, I don't feel a bit well. I know the milk in that egg nog must have been sour."

4:50 P. M. We were invited out to have a soda before going home. Had a lemon phosphate and then ran for the train.

5:30 P. M. We played a set of tennis before dinner, and here I am all tired out and a dinner to handle.

7 P. M. Fried potatoes, green corn, veal and blueberries. What do you know about that!!!!

7:45. We are going down town for a chocolate walnut college ice!!!!

8:20. Got home and found some one had made some lemonade. She drank two glasses. That on top of the college ice settles it. I strike.

8:30. Have sent back the college ice and lemonade.

8:40. Returned the blueberries.

8:50. And the veal.

9:10 P. M. She has sent for the doctor. Says that college ice must have had something the matter with it. Her mother says it is probably the weak stomach she inherited from her father.

9:30 P. M. Doctor says it's just a little upset, due to the hot weather. Good-night!!!!

Do not fail to use the fireless cooker freely during the canning and preserving season. Fruits that would ordinarily require a long cooking, and be reduced to a shapeless pulp, will retain their handsome appearance, and be just as well cooked, if the fireless cooker is used in preserving them. The housekeeper will suffer much less from the operation also. When jams are desired use the food chopper to grind the fruit in the first place. Then cook till well done and add sugar. A few minutes brisk boiling on top of the stove will complete the work and save many pains and aches.

Pear Butter.

Run through the food chopper enough pears to make one gallon, beat in a stone jar in the fireless cooker, allowing the water to boil for half an hour. Place in the cooler and allow to soften for three hours, when the heating should again be attended to. This operation should be repeated till the pears are soft and well cooked. The time varies with the kind of pears used. Take as much of the juice as can be pressed out and mix with six cups of sugar, boil till thick and stir into the pears, adding spices and cinnamon to suit. Roll down a few minutes and set away in unsealed jars. It will keep indefinitely. Sometimes add a few raisins to a portion of the butter and the children call it mincemeat.

Plum Butter.

To make a particularly delicate plum butter dip the plums in scalding water till the skins slip off. Place skins in a thin bag of cheese cloth and

WHO IS TO BLAME.

By MARY BESSELLI

This sentence from a recent epistle of diary roused in me a feeling of indignation. The man who boasts of being a lady-killer seems to me to be on a par with the hunter, who should boast of his prowess in a zoological garden where he could kill a caged lion with the butt of his gun. Most women are as easy game to the man who can flatter and lie, as some barnyard fowl. They fly into his hands in both cases. He couldn't help catching them if he could, yet most, but Juan classify themselves with the Caesars and the Bonapartes and think the easy capture of a woman's heart equal to the taking of a citadel. They forget there is a decided difference in the conditions. The first hardness of the average woman is to be captured.

There are plenty of sweet womanly girls left in the world. Every class in school and every home where there is a family which is sufficiently large to count more than the average in the census report, will have at least one that is sweet and modest. She is dainty and lovable, but the bold girl is as dainty to the eye, and quite as desirable to the chance observer. Perhaps she is even more attractive. In that she possesses a certain frank freedom of manner which makes one feel at ease with her almost instantly. She is usually surrounded by boys when she is at the boy age, and by young men when she may graduate into middle age. They may have to be courted by strategy, but they bear no trace of coquetry at the least.

A man I knew had tried for a long time to flirt with a girl in an office where he met her in the discharge of her duty. She was gay and smiling. When, however, he cut her on the school and every home where there is a family which is sufficiently large to count more than the average in the census report, will have at least one that is sweet and modest. She is dainty and lovable, but the bold girl is as dainty to the eye, and quite as desirable to the chance observer. Perhaps she is even more attractive. ROOSEVELT IS GUEST AT GOVERNOR STUBB'S HOME

Informal Reception Is Tendered by Kansas Executive to the Colonel's Party in Lawrence.

Lawrence, Kan., Sept. 1.—Colonel Roosevelt made a slight change in his itinerary last night and came to Lawrence in order that he might accept the invitation of Governor Stubbs to pay him a visit at his home here.

The governor had invited all the members of the colonel's party to his guests at an informal reception at his handsome residence and they all accepted. In addition to Clifford Phinney and James R. Garfield, who are now traveling in Mr. Roosevelt's car, the guests included Senator Blawie, Congressman Madison and many more of the "progressives" of Kansas.

Colonel Roosevelt spent last night in Lawrence instead of in Oskaloosa as had been originally planned, and this morning his train proceeded to Kansas City.

There was much comment last night on the similarity between the Kansas Republican platform adopted Tuesday and the sentiments expressed by Colonel Roosevelt at Oskaloosa, and it was believed by many that he had had a hand in the making of the platform. This was flatly denied and it was given out that the colonel was not satisfied with two of the plank in the platform those relating to the election of federal judges and to the trusts.

TROOPS AID IN FOREST FIRES.

Montana Governor Sends Soldiers to Fight Flames in National Park.

Big Timber, Mont., Sept. 1.—Under orders from Governor Norris, Company C, Montana national guard, is fighting a large forest fire on Boulder reserve, twelve miles from here, in the Contant national forest, where the forest supervisor had only fifteen men to aid him.

The soldiers hope to put out the fire in a few days if wet weather continues.

The fire situation is vastly improved as a result of the general rain. All the fires in the Bitter Root mountains south of Missoula are extinguished. The fire above Clinton, east of Missoula, are dead.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Fire fighters who risked death and sustained injuries in protecting life and property in the northwest and whose small wages were stopped by the government when they became incapacitated in line of duty, will receive funds for their immediate needs through the sympathy of employees of the forest service here.

IMPRISONED WIFE WITH SNAKES.

Husband Seeks to Tie Her on Hot Stove, Says Woman.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 1.—That her husband had imprisoned her in a cage in which there were two huge snakes of a venomous species, from which she barely escaped with her life, and that later he attempted to tie her hands and feet and place her on a redhot stove, was the testimony given by Mrs. Fannie S. Wood in the district court in her suit for divorce from Chester L. Wood. She secured her decree.

Wood became insane several months ago.

RATS CAUSE OF GHOST SCARE

Rodents Pull Electric Wire, Causing the Light to Rise and Fall and Frightening Men.

There are probably few persons who would confess to a belief in ghosts, spirits, specters, or spooks, as told in stories. But when some mysterious circumstance occurs at night time they are among the first to think of ghosts as an explanation of the phenomenon.

This, perhaps, was the case with Elmer Sampson and Art Anderson, who were startled and mystified as they were sitting in the office of a livery stable one evening recently when the electric light hanging from the ceiling began to rise and fall.

It is said that Mr. Anderson, who thought a ghost was in the attic, suggested that they give chase to it with a nail or water. It was finally decided that Mr. Anderson should get a lantern, while Mr. Sampson not a ladder, that they might investigate the attic for the cause of the disturbance.

The young men felt relieved at finding that two huge rats had been tugging away at an old umbrella, the handle of which had become hooked behind the electric light wire. Every time the rats pulled on the lamp would rise.

How Thackery Worked.
It seems to be held responsible for Thackery's appearance as an author, his erratic methods of work contributed equally to his early death. He wrote invariably with the printer's devil in attendance.

"I can conceive nothing more harassing to the literary way," wrote Motley to his wife in 1853, "than Thackery's way of living from hand to mouth. I mean in regard to the way he furnishes food to the printer's devil. Here he is just finishing the number that must appear in a few days. Of course, whether ill or well, stupid or fertile, he must produce the same amount of fun, pathos or sentiment. His gun must be regularly loaded and discharged at command, I should think it would wear his life out."

Motley's fears were realized within a few years.

BRIGERY AND OTHER FRAUDS ARE HEAVILY PUNISHABLE

EXTRACTS FROM THE LAWS

Following Excerpts Define Offenses and Impose Penalty for Violations of Code.

While it is not believed that any, even the most enthusiastic political worker, will willfully violate the state laws regarding bribery at the primary elections, these same laws might be violated through ignorance of what constitutes a transgression. To those voters and party workers who do not include the state statute books in their literary menu, the following extracts from the laws regarding bribery may be of interest. In this case publicity would seem to be the best measure to insure purity in the primary campaign.

CHAPTER II.—Serge Portol, South American, calls, and claims the marked bill. Orme refuses to give it up. Portol attacks Orme's character and leaves in anger. An American minister from his country is in touch for him. Alcantarante tries diplomacy to get the bill. On his return to the Pere Marquette, Orme is dragged by two Japanese into the tunnel-like passage to the courtyard. He is forced into silent submission and a forced exchange of the marked bill for another. The Japanese assassins, who came in his wake, are captured for another purpose. His assailants escape. He notes one of them has a scarred forehead.

CHAPTER IV.—In the Pere Marquette reception room he finds the girl of the car waiting for him. She too wants the bill. Orme tells his story. She recognises the Jap with the same black coat. The key to the hiding place on the hill is the key to the hiding place of important papers stolen from her father. Both Japanese and South Americans want the papers. She can not tell him who she is, nor the name of the papers. Orme promises to help her. The girl leaves. Orme gets his copy of the inscription. The girl disappears. It starts out in the black touring car in quest of the missing papers.

CHAPTER V.—In the university grounds at Evanston Orme locates the girl. She is alone. She has broken the lock. Orme tells Bessie with a wrench, but the other escapes in the darkness with the papers. Orme finds in Maku's pocket a folded slip of paper. At the girl's request he takes her and the car to his friend in Evanston. There she is still "Girly." He asks if she is safe. She is still "Girly." He asks if she is safe.

CHAPTER VI.—Orme goes back to the university grounds and finds out from Porter, on guard at the life-saving station, that Bessie is indeed. They hear a motor boat out on the lake and Orme suggests that Maku's escape is escaping that way. Suddenly stopping of the boat's exhaust indicates a break-down. Orme and Porter go out in another boat and find the crippled one. In the Jap with the papers and "Girly."

CHAPTER VII.—The two boys drive "Girly" home. The Jap finds Orme off, and, finally discovering that the girl has cut off the straw line, starts the motor and dashes away down the lake. Orme runs after the girl to the bridge. "Tomorrow I will get the papers," declares Orme.

CHAPTER VIII.—Bessie, now free from the city, Orme finds Maku. It is N. Parker who has been sent to bring him to the ground floor store and offices. In his change the marked bill. Arima, teacher of jiu-jitsu, is on the third floor. Orme calls on Arima, clairvoyant to the fourth floor, to advise him to allow him to use the address to contact his rooms below. He conceals himself under a covered table in Arima's front room.

CHAPTER IX.—Next morning, Orme goes to "Girly" to tell her it is N. Parker who has been sent to bring him to work separately to "find the American" in the papers. They go away and Arima goes into another room. Orme attempts to get away, but discovered and set upon by Bessie and Maku. They knock both, and climbs the fire-escape to the roof, where he hides him in his ghost-closet.

CHAPTER X.—Orme escapes in a ghost costume during a scene given by Arima and Arima, who have refused to leave the rooms where they were. Orme is greatly interested in the spirit to see him. On the side-wall he encounters Alcantarante.

Late afternoon, the refrigerator manufacturer's office is almost deserted. Wallingham has gone to Arradale. Orme cannot safely dispose of the papers or the evidence then for the night. During the excitement caused by one of Alcantarante's tricks, Orme sees the girl and follows her back to the office. He stops in front of a giant specimen separator which the girl has stopped to see. Alcantarante, the old man, comes up and the door closes on them both.

CHAPTER XIV.—They face death from suffocation in the air-tight machine-shop. Even now "Girly" does not tell her game but they confess their mutual love. Orme breaks the thermometer out of Alcantarante's trick. Orme sees the girl and follows her back to the office. He stops in front of a giant specimen separator which the girl has stopped to see. LOVING CUPS, ETC.

No More Indigestion, Dyspepsia or Sour, Gassy, Upset Stomach

Your out-of-order Stomach feels fine five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Papé's Diapepsin, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, greasy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat has like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 5-cent case of Papé's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There is no sour things, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness, or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Papé's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.
